Kissinger: Conflict 'a test of the detente'

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said yesterday night that the Middle East conflict is a test of the real detente between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Asked to comment, Kissinger said that the United States would not make a commitment to a settlement of the conflict until it was clear that the detente was real and that the United States was not making a mistake.

He said that the United States was not making a mistake in its policy of detente, and that the conflict was a test of the detente.

KOSYGIN IN CAIRO

CAIRO — Soviet Prime Minister Alexei Kosygin has had three long meetings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, the Middle East News Agency said last night.

The report by the semi-official agency, which said it had "learned" of the meetings, was the first disclosure here of Kosygin's visit.

There was no indication how long Kosygin would remain in the Egyptian capital. His visit coincided with indications of intensive diplomatic efforts by the great powers to find a cease-fire formula.

A Foreign Ministry official said in Jerusalem last night that the Soviet Union may be urging a standstill cease-fire agreement on Egypt, but that this would not be acceptable to Israel, and presumably not to the United States either.

IN SINAI — Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told newsmen here yesterday that Israel had now seized the initiative in the Suez campaign and that the "critical" battle for control of the Canal would begin in a few days.

Interviewed at a forward command post, Mr. Dayan said the Egyptians had misjudged the Israelis' ability to snap back from defence to attack. "They relied too much on their defensive installations and their Russian equipment. They overestimated their chances of beating us."

Cairo admits Israel task force active

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

The Egyptians last night said that an Israeli task force was "back in action" behind their lines across the Bitter Lakes in the central sector of the Suez Canal.

In a communiqué issued after a 20-hour silence, the Egyptians said the Israeli task force "were attempting to infiltrate across the Bitter Lakes with the aim of harassing our forces." The Egyptians claimed they had surrounded the Israeli task force and told it "to surrender or face destruction."

The communiqué came a day after the Egyptian military spokesman, Maj. Gen. Abdul-Aziz Mukhtar, claimed that the Israeli task force, which had been in action for three days, "has been completely destroyed."

Later the Egyptians said they were attacking the Israeli task force at a number of points.

Meanwhile, the Egyptians said that their ground troops had been subjected to heavy air raids to impede their advance. They added that 12 Israeli planes were downed and four pilots captured in the central sector of the Suez front.

Fighting at the central sector of the Suez front was yesterday described as the heaviest of the current fighting. Cairo Radio labelled it "the most ferocious," while "Al-Ahram" referred to it as the largest tank battle of the war, which had

TEL AVIV. — Israeli forces have re-established control over part of the east bank of the Suez Canal, linking up with the task force which has been operating on the Egyptian side of the waterway since Tuesday.

Egyptian assaults on the Israeli wedge on Wednesday and yesterday were repulsed with a loss to Egypt of 200 tanks as well as 19 fighter planes and six helicopters. At least four of the helicopters were carrying assault troops.

The Egyptians had brought armour, helicopter-borne troops and fighter planes into their desperate counter-attack.

Israeli losses were considered "surprisingly light" in view of the massive scale of the battles.

In other actions, Israeli naval commandos caused severe damage in raids inside the Egyptian naval bases at Port Said and Bardak during the past few nights. The Army spokesman said yesterday. At least five large vessels were sunk.

Naval units also shelled Egyptian coastal installations in the Mediterranean and the Gulf of Suez. All the Israeli boats returned safely to base.

The Egyptian losses in the air are believed to reflect their increasing tendency to use their aircraft to protect their threatened formations in the central sector on both sides of the Canal.

Three of the enemy planes shot down on the Egyptian front were Mirages, apparently supplied by Libya. They all fell into the sea off El Arish.

The "task force" which military sources here last night declined to name a bridgehead or an invasion of Egypt, was reinforced yesterday with artillery and tanks. It continued to attack SAM anti-aircraft batteries, as well as artillery, armour and rear echelon headquarters, and to disrupt communications and logistics. The force is enjoying freedom of movement, despite enemy attempts to pin it down, the sources said.

Home talks to Russians

LONDON — British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home summoned Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Tikhonov to a 30-minute meeting today at which they reviewed the Middle East situation, a foreign office spokesman said.

A British spokesman said that the Jordanian ambassador, in London, Mr. Ma'an Abu Nowar, this morning protested to Deputy Foreign Minister Julian Amery that the British government's embargo on the supply of arms to the Middle East had a much greater effect on Jordan than on Israel.

In Amsterdam, Dutch Foreign Minister Max van der Stoep said here this week that Holland was "disappointed" by Egypt's and Syria's aggression. Speaking on an hour-long television programme on which Israeli Ambassador Hannan Bar-On also participated, the Dutch Minister said Israel was entitled to "secure borders and to continued existence as a state."

Nixon to Arabs: 'Arms balance is essential'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told the Arab world on Wednesday he would work for peace in the Middle East, a peace he said could best be insured by a balance of military power between Israel and its Arab neighbours.

Nixon met with emissaries of four Arab oil-producing states and told them peace in the Middle East was his aim "whatever differences we have as to the means and certain ends" that achieving it might entail.

Nixon said the present conflict "is not like the situation" in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, when diplomatic relations between the Arab nations and Washington were severed. "Arab and American governments are talking."

He said the conversations would continue at the State Department. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger met the four prior to their session with Nixon, which he also attended.

Saudi Foreign Minister Omar Squalqi said "the meeting was fruitful."

340 SOVIET TANKS ARRIVE IN SYRIA

Post Military Correspondents

TEL AVIV. — Syria has received 340 new Soviet tanks in the last four days and if deliveries continue at their present pace, the Syrian army will have replaced almost all the armour it lost so far, according to foreign sources.

However, the Syrians will presumably have difficulty in providing crews for their new tanks, in view of their great losses in the war so far.

Observers here point out that the speed and quantity with which the new supplies are reaching Syria by ship indicate that the operation must have been planned before the war broke out. This in turn is considered evidence of the Soviet Union's knowledge of the Egyptian and Syrian intention to go to war.

The Syrian front remained quiet yesterday and Wednesday, apart from some local artillery duels.

Syrian aircraft, however, bombed the Golan Druse village of Majdal Shams Wednesday afternoon, killing two inhabitants, one of them a three year old girl. Fifteen other villagers were injured in this raid (see P. 2).

Israel air activity Wednesday and yesterday included more raids on the road leading out of Latakia Port. Latakia is the principal supply port for Soviet arms deliveries to Syria. The IAF planes were reported to have knocked out two bridges on the Latakia-Damascus road.

Wednesday's aerial dogfights cost the Syrians 10 planes.

Amin says Jerusalem and T.A. about to fall

KAMPALA (UPI) — President Idi Amin cabled the organization of African Unity (OAU) to say: "I am glad to inform you that I have just returned from a fact-finding mission in the Middle East and according to my assessment of the situation, the liberation forces are about to reach Jerusalem and Tel Aviv," Amin said.

Demand $10m. for Arab war effort

TERRORISTS SEIZE U.S. BANK IN BEIRUT

Several armed men they belonged to a Lebanese organization occupied downtown Bank of America and demanded $10m. for fighting Israel, witnesses said.

Witnesses — believed to number about 20 — held an undetermined number of bank employees hostage and issued successive ultimatums, saying they would blow up the bank if their demands were not met. Police engineers a escape for 17 of the hostages, but at least 20 and as many as 60 were believed to still be held.

The gunmen stormed the offices of the Bank of America in the heart of the Beirut business district at midday and fought a violent gunbattle with police. As night fell, they were still holed up on the third and fourth floors of the modern marble-and-chrome bank building, besieged by a strong force of heavily-armed Lebanese security men. (See photo, page 4.)

Soon after they took over the offices, they threw a note out of a window identifying themselves as members of a Lebanese urban guerrilla group called the Revolutionary Socialist Movement.

Intermittent shooting continued for more than three hours after the gunmen entered the bank. Police cordoned the area for about two blocks around the bank.

The message they threw from the window, addressed to Lebanese authorities, said the $10m. they were demanding should go to the armies of Egypt and Syria to help fight Israel.

Blast cuts Beirut links

BEIRUT (UPI) — Two undersea cable lines linking Lebanon and Syria with Europe, the U.S. and Egypt were sabotaged during the night, the Lebanese Government announced yesterday.

The Beirut newspaper "An-Nahar" quoted semi-official sources as saying the Israelis blew up the twin cable line, using either depth charges or charges fixed to the cable by frogmen.

(In Tel Aviv a military spokesman denied the Israelis were responsible.)

(Israel this week circulated a letter at the U.N. protesting against more than 17 terrorist attacks on Israel from Lebanese territory.)

The rupture of the Beirut-Marjess and Beirut-Alexandria cable links cut Beirut's westward communications off completely for several hours after a series of explosions shook Beirut at 1 a.m. on Wednesday.

But after daybreak telex and telephone links were partially restored with Cyprus, Athens and some other points in Europe.

Communications between Beirut and Cairo remained down most of the day and it also was not possible to telephone between Cairo and Damascus.

Meir praises U.S. stand

PARIS (UPI) — Premier Golda Meir praised the U.S. attitude in the Arab-Israeli conflict in an interview with French television yesterday.

"The U.S. I'm convinced, has in mind the interests of peace in this area, and the fact that the U.S. has traditionally maintained ties of friendship with Israel cannot in any way (indicate) the U.S. is against the Arabs," she said.

Speaking of the Soviet role in the Middle East, Mrs. Meir said: "I don't really believe it is because of their real interest for the Arab people, they're not interested in the Arabs... They have only one single, selfish, callous interest and that is the interest of the Soviet Union."

"They are based in this region for strategic reasons, because of oil."

Senate and House back Israel

WASHINGTON — U.S. Senators and Congressmen yesterday sponsored two resolutions backing U.S. support of Israel in the present Middle East conflict.

Sixty-seven senators joined in a resolution to put the Senate on record as supporting continued shipments of U.S. military equipment to Israel.

In the House of Representatives, a bipartisan bloc of 38 Congressmen sponsored a resolution calling on President Nixon to take "immediate steps to end any U.S. dependence on Arab oil."

Syrian jet kills two in Golan farm village

Jerusalem Post Staff
A Syrian Sukhoi plane bombed the Druze village of Majdal Shams in Northern Golan Wednesday afternoon, killing two persons and injuring 15 others. Four houses were destroyed and 20 others partially damaged.

The dead were Zafira Mar'al, 70, and her three-year-old granddaughter.

The stunned and angered villagers later held a meeting and chose a committee to protest to the U.N. and the International Red Cross against the bombing of defenceless civilians "in a farming village that could by no stretch of the imagination be regarded as a military target."

Majdal Shams was also bombed at the beginning of the war, when Syrians strafed three villages in Northern Golan, killing 12.

Terrorists operating from Lebanon were again busy during the past two nights. Four Katyusha rockets landed in Shlomi and Betzet, in Western Galilee, Wednesday night. A 17-year-old youth was injured in Shlomi and the settlement's electric power cable was damaged. Shells also exploded in the vicinity of Kfar Seld and Manara (Remm) in Eastern Galilee. There were no casualties and no damage to property was reported.

Two terrorists were killed near Metuliah Wednesday night in a clash with an Israeli patrol, the army spokesman said yesterday. Two bazookas and a Kalashnikov assault rifle were found beside the bodies, as well as documents indicating that the terrorists belonged to the Syrian-sponsored Ba'ath organization.

On Tuesday night, terrorists shelled the settlements of Ya'ara, Malkiya, Metulla, Kiryat Shmona and Dan with mortars, Katyushas and bazookas. Kiryat Shmona Local Council worker Hananya Shoshani, 35, was injured in the leg by shell fragments.

Police Minister Shlomo Hillel visited Kiryat Shmona and Metulla yesterday and conveyed the Government's appreciation of the residents' courageous deportment. He said: "Lebanon cannot evade responsibility for the terrorist activity launched from its territory."

Ben-Ari raised to Tat-Aluf

Aluf-Mishne (Res.) Uri Ben-Ari yesterday became the first reserve officer ever in the Israel Defense Force to be promoted on the battlefield, when he was raised to the rank of Tat-Aluf (brigadier-general).

Ben-Ari, who commanded the armored brigade that took Ramallah and Jericho in the Six Day War, was summoned by the Chief of Staff, Rav-Aluf David Elazar, in the midst of fighting on the southern front. Elazar ripped the old insignia from his shoulders and replaced them with a dusty, battle-worn pair lent by another Tat-Aluf for the occasion.

The whole ceremony lasted no more than two minutes — and then it was back to the war, with Tat-Aluf (Res.) Ben-Ari rejoining Rav-Aluf (Res.) Haim Bar-Lev and Aluf Shmuel Gonen, O.C. Southern Command, at the command tables. The only one who had time to show any sign of emotion was Ben-Ari's driver, who said he was "dying to kiss his boss."

SIMCHAT TORA 5734

War Loan collections, 'Yizkor' prayers dominate

By SARAH HONIG
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Simhat Tora holiday atmosphere was scarcely evident in the city streets yesterday, but the war was felt inside the synagogues.

The traditional hakafot — street dancing by celebrants bearing Tora scrolls in their arms — were cancelled this year due to the blackout, and the festivities were thus limited to synagogues. In the few synagogues that were properly blacked out they were held after sundown. But most services and hakafot were held earlier to beat the blackout.

A few hundred Bukharan and Salonikan Jews defied the blackout, however, and danced through the darkened streets, bearing Tora scrolls.

Inside the synagogues the atmosphere was far more sombre than usual, as morning Yizkor services were held for the IDF's fallen. Speedy recovery wishes went out to the wounded, and prayers were said for prisoners of war. Most rabbis delivered sermons on the war.

The children were there as usual, with their gaily decorated paper flags topped by apples and candles. There was dancing and reading from the Tora, but the conversations revolved exclusively around the war, as congregants analysed the tank battle strategy.

SIZABLE SUMS

Rabbis and congregation leaders took the opportunity to urge the public to make contributions to the Voluntary War Loan, and sizable sums were donated in many synagogues. It is usually a tradition for someone invited to read from the Tora of this holiday to make a donation to some charity. This time there was only one cause to which people were willing to contribute — the War Loan drive.

Even in the most ultra-orthodox (and of the anti-Zionist) centres of Beit Brak, generous contributions to the war effort were reported.

Residents of the Florentine Quarter here, where especially colourful mass hakafot take place every year, told The Jerusalem Post they were disappointed that the situation this Simhat Tora did not allow them to hold their public street celebrations. But they promised that "very soon, when we have won, we will hold an extraordinary second Simhat Tora, the links of which this city has never seen. The Arabs will not deprive us of our celebrations."

In Safed, old rabbis and young yeshiva students, headed by Safed's Sephardi Chief Rabbi David David, walked seven times around the graves of Rabbi Shimon Bar Yohai and his son Eliezer at Maron, on Wednesday, chanting centuries-old prayers and quotations from the Zohar, the ancient book of Kabbalist mysticism. The incantations, against the dangers and afflictions threatening the People of Israel and for its success in battle, were ordained by the 18th century Rabbi Yosef Karo, author of the "Shulhan Aruch," for times of trial and crisis.

Second hakafot to mark the end of the Simhat Tora holiday were held at Jerusalem's Shaare Zedek and Hadassah Hospitals last night, with Gadna youngsters, volunteers and yeshiva students giving the wounded an eagerly accepted lift with their singing and dancing.

The synagogue at Shaare Zedek was thronged last night with dancers carrying Tora scrolls some of them injured soldiers with one arm in a sling. Loud music — rarely heard in a hospital — was provided by a combo for four young U.S. volunteers. Doctors, administrative workers and a burly military policeman joined in the hakafot, while nurses and Bnei Akiva girls joined the singing from behind the mehitza (separating wall) of the women's section.

DANCING IN WAJDS

On Wednesday evening, the beginning of Simhat Tora, the young visitors had also gone upstairs into the wards, singing and carrying Tora scrolls (instrumental music is not allowed on Sabbaths and holidays).

The faces of the injured lit up as they kissed the Tora scrolls carried past the beds by the dancers. Dr. Morris Weinberg said, "None of the doctors or nurses could hold back tears," he added.

Second hakafot were also held at Beit Hanassi last night, with President Efraim Katzir joining in the dancing. The dancers, yeshiva students and members of the Mount Zion Committee had earlier circled the walls of the Old City dancing in compliance with a Biblical verse.

The Emergency Headquarters has also requested all citizens to refrain from pruning the trees in their gardens for the duration of the war. Legal steps will be taken against anyone failing to comply with this request. (Itim.)

British war experts assess M.E. war

LONDON (UPI). — Military experts assessing the Middle East war on Wednesday rated the Egyptian air force as the most significant development in the fighting.

But, they said, the system's effectiveness may have been exaggerated by the Israeli failure to install expensive electronic countermeasures in the Phantom F4 fighter-bombers used as their mailed fist in the sky.

On the ground, the experts said Israel's U.S. and British tanks with their 105mm. guns have proven more than a match for the Arab mixture of armour led by the Soviet-made main battle tank, the T-62.

The experts said they also have been studying with interest the Frog ground-to-ground missiles Syrians used to fire 64 kms. inside Israeli territory in the early days of the war.

They doubted, however, that this rocket would play a significant strategic role in the fighting as long as the Syrian and Egyptian cities remained open to counter strikes from the air by Israel.

Among warplanes, they credited the Phantom — with its longer range and dual fighter-bomber role — as much more effective than the Mig-19s the Arabs have put into the air. They said, however, the Phantom has yet to be tested against the Soviet's Sukhoi-11, which has made an appearance in small numbers with the Iraqi air force in Syria.

In detail, the experts offered the following assessment on the various weapons systems and tactics emerging from the war:

• Air Defence: The mixture of Sam-2, Sam-3 and Sam-6 missiles working in concert with traditional anti-aircraft guns has proved extremely effective against Israeli air incursions along the Suez Canal, as well as in the Damascus area. They estimated this combination has brought down up to 100 Israeli planes, including at least 20 Phantoms.

The experts said, however, the success of this system might diminish with the introduction of available electronic countermeasures (ECM) in Israeli warplanes. These instruments were not installed before the war because of their expense and the apparent Israeli opinion that the Arabs would not be able to effectively operate the sophisticated air defence weapons the Soviets provided, they said.

• Tanks: The agile T-54 and T-65 tanks used by the Syrians performed well while the Israeli Egyptian armies were on the offensive, but have been unable to match the firepower of the Israeli tanks in a slugging match. The U.S. made M-48 main battle tank and the M-48 used by Israel have an estimated 400m. advantage in range over the Soviet tanks, heavier armour, more accurate guns, and advanced sighting equipment that allows them to sight in on an opponent faster. The British Centurion tanks, which began last month, turians fitted with the same capabilities for a more antiquated system.

• Air Force: The Israeli Mig-19s that for the Arab at Mig-17 carries a complement of armaments in the Phantom F4 fighter-bomber used as their mailed fist in the sky. This means the Phantom over the battlefield longer than the Soviet Both fly at much-two ly manoeuvrable.

Israeli armour has learned how to handle the Egyptians

By ABRAHAM RABINOVICH
Jerusalem Post Reporter

SINAI. — Heavy autumn mist lingers over much of Sinai these days for hours after the sun rises, cutting visibility at times to 100 metres or less.

Israeli front-line troops have become accustomed in the past two weeks to seeing the mist lift to reveal hundreds of Egyptian infantrymen dug into the yellow, contoured sand dunes in front of them every second or third man armed with an anti-tank weapon.

The use by the Egyptians of infantry as a primary weapon against the formidable Israeli armour is a tactical surprise that met with considerable success in the opening two days of the war, and accounted in good part for the establishment of the Egyptian bridgeheads across the Canal. A visit yesterday to an Israeli Patton tank unit behind the lines indicates that the Israelis have already learned how to cope with the problem.

"We've worked out a system in the course of battle," said Capt. Amikam, a young company commander. "The percentage of hits from their anti-tank missiles is now just a fraction of what it was at the beginning."

The unit has been in combat every day since the outbreak of the war. The crews, who were to have been replaced by fresh crews several days ago, have refused to be relieved "as long as they want to stay, we let them," Amikam said.

NOTHING LESS

The unit was about to move back up to the front. "Do we want to cross the Canal?" asked a soldier. "We won't accept anything less."

Amikam, a kibbutznik from the Jezreel Valley, said the Egyptian infantry had improved. "They fought like men, particularly the first two days." He also found the Egyptian artillery improved; but the Egyptian armour, he said, was as bad as ever. Two days before the Patton unit had knocked out 30 Soviet-built tanks and captured others intact. They had taken 100 prisoners, many of whom claimed they had not eaten in three days.

Serving with the unit was Allen, an officer in his early 20s, who immigrated to Israel in 1969 and lived on a kibbutz. Allen said he had had no contact with his home since moving here. He was an artillery spotter and had been under heavy fire since the fighting started. "This is why I came here," he said. "Not that I want war, but now I've done what I had to."

In the shade of a tank, a group of young officers with stubby beards knelt around a map of Syria, listening with close interest as a visiting information officer explained what was happening on the northern front.

'Soviet-manned long-range missiles now in Egypt'

By ZE'EV SCHUL and BONNIE HOPE
Jerusalem Post Military Correspondents

TEL AVIV. — Soviet Scud-type ground-to-ground missiles, carrying a one-ton warhead with a range of 400 kilometres plus, are now believed to be stationed in Egypt, a senior army officer told military correspondents here on Wednesday.

The officer said the missiles were serviced by all-Russian crews. Their use against Israel would signify a major escalation of the Soviet involvement in the Middle Eastern conflict, he pointed out.

He did not believe the Egyptian-made Zafer missiles, which President Sadat has said he would use against Israel, were operational weapons or useful for anything but being exhibited at military parades.

The Scud lacks pinpoint accuracy, he said. This is because its warhead was designed to carry a nuclear payload. As a high-explosive carrying missile it could be destructive, but it could not be used effectively against small targets. It could however be used against

ARAB OIL THREAT CALLED IMPRACTICAL

By DAVID KRIVINE
Jerusalem Post Economic Correspondent

First reactions abroad to the Arab threat to cut oil production by 5 per cent monthly until Israel withdraws are of frank bewilderment. The whole project seems impractical, the experts say.

First of all, how can the Arab oil powers ensure that their restrictions do not affect countries friendly to them? After all, it is the oil companies — not the producers — which do the shipping.

At first glance, it would seem that the British and the French, who have seriously offended Israel over arms supplies — to the Arabs' unconcealed delight — will be hit all the same, while the U.S., which is not at the moment vulnerable to the boycott, is scarcely affected.

Secondly, if the monthly 5 per cent reduction were to go on, say, for 20 months, oil production in the Middle East (except for Persia) would read zero, a basic absurdity. The intention is probably to panic Western powers. These must examine first whether the threat is realistic, that is, whether Israel is the real obstacle to a continued smooth flow of oil supplies. They will be disturbed by the Persian Gulf powers' unilateral decision to put up petroleum prices by 17 per cent. If this is accepted by the buyer countries, then reducing output by five or 10 or even 15 per cent (if it can be done) will not reduce the Arab countries' oil revenues.

They have in fact observed in their official statement that if Arab interests only were considered, it would be desirable to reduce the oil flow anyway. They maintain high levels of production only to serve the interests of their clients. It follows that blackmailing the Western powers to sabotage Israel's defence efforts is the thin end of the wedge. The Arabs have every motive for producing excuses to reduce the oil flow.

The problem of the Western powers remains, as before, to make it worthwhile in material terms for the Arabs to sell their oil, and disadvantageous in material terms not to, observers point out. That is the central point, rather than yielding to any particular piece of blackmail. (See "Oil trouble," page 5) price of their crude oil by 17 per cent.

In Washington, the House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved a bill Wednesday to require President Nixon to impose rationing on production and wholesale distribution of crude oil and all refined petroleum products, and to forbid the export of oil.

The vote was 887 to 72. The bill has been referred to a conference committee for negotiation of a House-Senate compromise.

But Republican Senator Jacob Javits, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said yesterday there is no reason to alter America's foreign policy because of Arab plans to curtail oil production.

"Even a 10 per cent cutback by the Arabs would result in a loss to the U.S. of only about 1 1/4 per cent in total consumption requirements," he said in a prepared statement.

In London, a British Foreign Office spokesman said yesterday that the decision by Arab states to cut oil supplies did not appear in the first instance to be directed at Britain.

"We are not certain how the application of the measure would work out in effect," he added.

And in Paris, officials said petrol prices are expected to rise sharply by at least six centimes a litre. There were also strong hints of possible fuel rationing.

trouble if the Egyptians had followed up their surprise crossing of the canal with a sustained offensive. This would have forced Israel to defend against ill-timed attacks on two fronts simultaneously.

But the Egyptians in effect pulled up after penetrating only relatively few miles into the Sinai. Most of their line still reaches only from three to six miles east of the canal.

According to estimates reaching the Pentagon, the Israelis have suffered about 3,000 casualties—dead and wounded. Israel has lost about 780 tanks of an original force of about 1,900 and some 100 fighters and fighter-bombers out of roughly 300 such planes war the STOCKHOLM (Reuter). — Australian novelist Patrick White was awarded the 1973 Nobel Prize for Literature yesterday for his epic narratives, which the Swedish Academy said introduced the voice of a new continent into world literature. The Academy said White had raised the reputation with "The Tree of Man," published in 1955.

Russian-born Professor Wassily Leontief of Harvard University yesterday won the Nobel Prize for Economic Science. The 67-year-old U.S. citizen was honoured for creating the "input-output" method of economic analysis, which is particularly useful in assessing the impact of dramatic change on an economy.

Patrick White, the 61-year-old writer, was born and educated in Britain, but spent much of his boyhood on his father's sheep-station in Australia.

Both Nobel winners will receive 480,000 and a medal. The prizes will be presented by Sweden's 27-year-old King Carl Gustaf at a ceremony on December 10, anniversary of the death of Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite, who set up the Nobel prizes.

The Swedish Academy gave lavish praise to White's novels: "He is the one who, for the first time, has given the continent of Australia an authentic voice that carries across the world." The Academy said:

At the same time his writings had contributed to the artistic development of contemporary literature, thus making a very important contribution to the world literature of our time.

In winning the coveted Nobel award, the Australian has joined other illustrious masters of narrative literature including American authors John Steinbeck and William Faulkner, and the Russian novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

His latest novel, "The Eye of the Storm," was published this year, and among his other best-known works are "Happy Valley" and "Voss."

Professor Wassily Leontief's economic method has been used to analyse different types of economies. It has been especially useful in measuring the effect of sudden changes on an economy such as mobilization. The method was used by the United States to study the impact of American Economy 1919-29, and later studies of the war, and it has provided tools for systematic analysis of the effect of transactions between different industries.

BANGKOK (AP). — The head of Thailand's fallen military government flew toward exile in the U.S. Wednesday.

The Prime Minister, Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, who had hid out for a day after the new government announced his departure, was reported heading for Boston on a commercial flight.

"It was the wish of Field Marshal Thanom to go to the U.S., and this had the concurrence of the Thai government," said a U.S. Embassy spokesman.

Meanwhile Thanom's ex-deputy, Field Marshal Phrasas Charuathien, and Thanom's son, Col. Nong Kittikachorn, were in Taipei for what was described as "a short stay, a transit."

None of the three was expected to face economic hardship. All had amassed considerable fortunes while in office — a fact which added fuel to student demands for their ouster.

The National Student Centre of Thailand, which claims 400,000 members, emerged from the crisis as a formidable political power.

Thailand's new Prime Minister, university rector Dr. S. Sathakorn, made a government-sponsored cremation ceremony for the hundreds killed in the uprising and said he would ask his cabinet to find government funds to compensate victims' families.

HAVANA (Reuters). — An anti-Castro gunman who held the Belgian and French ambassadors hostage for over 24 hours died of wounds received in a shootout with Cuban security forces from the Cuban Foreign Ministry, said yesterday.

The kidnapper was captured and the two hostage diplomats freed unharmed in a rescue operation on Wednesday directed personally by Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The kidnapper, a Cuban, who was taken to hospital where he died on the operating table Wednesday afternoon, according to a ministry communique quoted by Havana Radio.

The kidnapper, said to be a well-dressed mulatto, had been holding the two envoys at his home at the French Embassy since Tuesday afternoon.

The warning was issued by Mohammed Ahmed Mahgoub, head of the Damascus-based office, who urged the Arab League's 18 member states to ban the French company.

'Development scrapped'

MIAMI (UPI). — Finance Minister Pinchas Sapir has told Jewish leaders that Israel has been forced to scrap its entire $642m. development budget because of unexpectedly high costs of the Middle East war, Jewish sources said yesterday.

Sapir, who arrived here secretly earlier this week, met with seven of the 17 most-influential Jewish leaders in the country, and then left for Jerusalem.

S. Jewry raises $275m. for Israel

YORK. — An estimated 1,000 people has been collected to aid the people of Israel since the Middle East war began, the two major national organizations said Tuesday.

National spokesman for Israel reported that $175m. worth of goods were sold in the U.S. and abroad in the last 12 days.

United Jewish Appeal reported national contributions of $1.5m. in cash.

Bonds headquarters said on Tuesday that it has set a major goal this year of $420m. in cash — equal to Israel's development budget.

Zuckerman, general chairman of the UJA, said his organization goal had been set at $420m. An additional goal of $100m. has been projected by UJA for the Jewish community needs in the U.S.

He said that funds received during the first week of the year primarily from cash payments on existing 1973 pledges.

A campaign for 1974 begins today," he said. "Many of the religious institutions and services in Israel will suffer serious shortages or possible elimination unless funds are quickly provided to them."

He reported erroneously on Tuesday that a cash drive had collected approximately $825m.

A $100,000 check for the Israel War Relief was presented to UJA officials in a ceremony in sign of appreciation.

The check came from the American Association of the Israel Defense Forces.

ralles and expressed their feelings in messages and cash contributions in New York, scores of young pro-Israel demonstrators on Tuesday gathered for self-determination for Palestine.

Representative Herman Badillo, Democrat-New York, told a labour union rally in support of Israel that Congress should be urged to vote down most-favoured-nation treatment for the USSR unless she stops supplying arms to the Arabs.

Many blacks, Puerto Ricans and other non-Jews were in the crowd as Israel Consul General David Eliahu addressed his nation's "heartfelt gratitude," saying he was "overwhelmed by what I hear and see here today."

NOISY DEMONSTRATION

At a noisy demonstration outside the CBS building, an estimated 125 persons chanted their demands for "Israel to end apartheid," and protested what they called "biased coverage" of the Mideast war by news media.

In Paris, on Tuesday, about 3,000 people took part in a demonstration of support for Israel. There were no incidents. Among the demonstrators was the wife of former French Premier Pierre Mendès-France.

The demonstrators chanted "Israel will live" and "Robert assassins" — referring to French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert, who last week remarked that wanting to return to one's land did not necessarily constitute aggression.

The remark raised a storm of criticism here, particularly among pro-Israeli politicians — including some from the ruling Gaullist UDR party — and French Jews.

In London, a group of Jewish women demonstrated on Tuesday, as the visiting mayor of Moscow Vladimir Pronoyevskiy toured county hall, seat of the Greater London Council.

The demonstrators, brandishing a banner reading "Mayor of Moscow — release imprisoned Moscow Jews," were joined by some Council members.

When the mayor went inside for an official welcome, Ben Mason, a Labour Councillor, stormed outside and said "I cannot associate myself with the welcome of this representative of the Russian Government, whose intervention has contributed to the deaths of thousands of Israeli and Arab young men in the Middle East." What's the most effective Hebrew language course in Israel?

First of all you should know that I'm the author of the only complete Hebrew course ever published. And it's effective!

Why? You certainly have to know why before paying money to take a course which is available practically free at government-subsidized ulpanim.

Although we've taught hundreds of students in the last three years, hardly anybody believes it's as effective as it is. Most of our students are people who have tried and failed at a Hebrew ulpan. Their drop-out rate is tremendous. Ask any veteran.

There's no real reason why you should suffer the humiliating experience of failing in one of the government-subsidized ulpanim, all of which use the "direct" method. With that method, students don't achieve about 1,000 lessons (approximately 1,000 lessons) wait our students achieve in 480 lessons.

Why? Primarily because they are drilling most of the time without knowing the meanings of the words. It's all very well to use the direct method (explaining each new word with words learned previously) for about a year and a half, but how do you explain nouns like "courtesy," "pride," "modesty," or verbs such as "forgive," "trust," and "envy"?

An enormous amount of time is wasted with students manipulating words they don't understand. We simply provide trans-tations of new words into Russian, French, Spanish and English. There's no guesswork. No one sits in ignorance!

Our series is interesting. Each of the advanced books has up-to-date, inside information on subjects such as Education in Israel, Job Opportunities, Health and Health Services, National Insurance and Archaeology.

In the beginning books, every sentence can be put to immediate use in everyday situations: going through customs, renting an apartment, applying for a job, or an emergency visit to the doctor.

Our classroom work is more dynamic than you would believe possible. We're able to teach you really fluent Hebrew — sufficient to understand a university lecture, express any thought in good colloquial speech, or read a Hebrew newspaper (unpointed) without the help of a dictionary — in 216 to 480 lessons depending on your present knowledge. Come and try it for a month.

If you're not satisfied at the end of the month, I'll refund your tuition.

Come any Tuesday or Thursday from 4.30–7.00 p.m. for a placement test and a personal interview with me. New classes begin October 21.
